IV. FACTS

4.1 Plaintiffs would show that, at all times material to the Plaintiffs' claims, the Defendants were healthcare providers as defined by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code section 74.001(a)(12). On October 24, 2012, Elizabeth Paige Hawkins (Mrs. Hawkins) was a resident of Regency Healthcare and Rehabilitation Center at Red River (Regency) in Clarksville, Red River County, Texas. The Defendants, Nexion Health Management, Inc.; Nexion Health at Bogata, Inc. d/b/a Regency Healthcare and Rehabilitation Center at Red River; Nexion Health Leasing, Inc.; Nexion Health of Texas, Inc.; and Nexion Health, Inc., (Nexion Defendants) owned, operated, controlled and/or were affiliated with Regency.

4.2 The said Defendants were, at the time Mrs. Hawkins was a resident at Regency, a nursing home duly licensed, certified, registered, or chartered by the State of Texas to provide health care as defined by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code section 74.001(a)(21). Alternatively, the said Defendants were, at all relevant times, an officer, director, shareholder, member, partner manager, owner or affiliate of a health care provider and an employee, independent contractor, or agent of a health care provider acting in the course and scope of the employment or contractual relationship. Tex. Civ. Prac. Rem Code section 74.001(a)(12)(B)(i)(ii). Further, as affiliates of a healthcare provider, Defendants, at all relevant times, directly or indirectly, through one or more intermediaries, controlled, was controlled by, or was made under common control with a specified person (or entity), including any direct or indirect parent or subsidiary. Tex. Civ. Prac. Rem.

Code section 74.001(a)(1). Control was exercised by possession, directly or indirectly, of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of the person (or entity), whether through ownership of equity or securities by contract or otherwise. Tex. Civ. Prac Rem. Code section 74.001(a)(1)(3).

4.3 Specifically, the Nexion Defendants controlled the policies and procedures of the nursing home, providing budgets, approving budgets, training of nursing home staff, management of the nursing home, as well as providing regional clinical specialists to direct the administration of clinical care at various Nexion affiliates to include Regency. Additionally, Defendant Nexion Health markets Regency as one of its “campuses” in the “Nexion family.” See www.nexion-health.com [04/14/2014.] This Nexion Defendant boasts the training of “our staff” at the various Nexion “campuses,” and speaks of “our campus employees” and “our caregivers” in the “Nexion family” to include Regency. Id. Finally, the Nexion Defendants have also exerted their power to direct and control Regency by implementing reporting requirements on the nursing home. Specifically, by requiring administration to report state investigations by the Department of Aging and Disability Services (DADS) involving patient abuse and neglect to the Nexion Defendants. Case in point, the incident made the basis of this lawsuit.

4.4 Mrs. Hawkins was a 50 year old lady who suffered from a severe diabetic condition requiring continual administration of insulin by an insulin pump. Mrs. Hawkins’ physician provided orders to the nursing home which specified the maximum range for Mrs. Hawkins’ glucose level. When that level was exceeded, the staff of the nursing home were to advise the physician. On numerous occasions, Mrs. Hawkins’ blood sugar levels exceeded the level required for reporting to her physician and the staff took no action to report the excessive levels though, frequently, the recorded levels were dangerously high.

4.5 Mrs. Hawkins suffered from depression and dementia. This condition contributed to Mrs. Hawkins' tendency to leave the nursing home facility. Nursing home residents with this tendency are classified as a "risk for elopement." At all times material, the Defendants' records concerning Mrs. Hawkins' care noted that she was a risk for elopement. A resident, who is a risk for elopement, requires the constant supervision of nursing home staff when the resident is outside the nursing home building.

4.6 In the early morning hours of October 24, 2012, the staff of the Defendants' nursing home allowed Mrs. Hawkins to go outside of the building without any supervision. Defendants' facility is equipped with a Wanderguard System which is designed to prevent residents, who are at risk for elopement, from exiting the building. On the morning of October 24, 2012, when Mrs. Hawkins exited the nursing home, the system was either not operational or the nursing home staff allowed Mrs. Hawkins to leave the facility without supervision. As a result of the failure of the Defendants to properly supervise Mrs. Hawkins, she left the grounds of the nursing home and walked onto, and crossed, heavily-traveled U.S. Highway 82. As she crossed the highway, she fell into a ditch, three to five feet in depth, containing a concrete culvert. As a result thereof, she suffered serious fractures to her arm and foot, as well as other injuries. Mrs. Hawkins, unable to stand, remained in the ditch alone and in excruciating pain for forty-five minutes to an hour. Eventually, employees of the nursing home who were outside on a smoke break heard Mrs. Hawkins' cries for help as she lay injured in the ditch some distance away. They went to Mrs. Hawkins and found her in great pain and unable to stand. Rather than immediately calling 911 and reporting the injury and without making any report as required by law, but using a cell phone, they called co-workers inside the nursing home requesting that they come with a wheelchair.

4.7 Four (4) employees of the Defendants gathered in the ditch around the seriously injured Mrs. Hawkins and, though she was expressing great pain, they loaded her into the wheelchair and wheeled her back across the highway and into the nursing home. They placed Mrs. Hawkins in her bed and when it appeared that her suffering was too great to ignore, they decided to seek medical assistance. After an attempt to load her in the nursing home van, her expressions of pain were too much and they decided to call emergency medical services (EMS). The four employees of the Defendants then conspired together to falsely report that Mrs. Hawkins' injuries resulted from a fall in her room. This path was chosen instead of reporting how the fall actually happened in an attempt to conceal their own negligence in allowing her to go outside the nursing home without supervision.

4.8 Upon arrival at the nursing home, the emergency personnel (EMTs) were directed to Mrs. Hawkins' room but none of the staff or persons with knowledge of the facts concerning her fall went to her room or assisted the EMTs in providing care to Mrs. Hawkins. The EMTs asked Mrs. Hawkins how her injuries occurred, and she told them that she fell while outside the facility. As the EMTs were removing Mrs. Hawkins, they repeated Mrs. Hawkins' version of events to the employees of the Defendants who were involved in the conspiracy to cover up the actual events. Those employees adamantly contradicted Mrs. Hawkins' version of events and stated that Mrs. Hawkins had fallen in her room. The EMTs, relying on the nursing home staff's version of events, reported to the treating healthcare providers at the emergency room of the hospitals that Mrs. Hawkins' injuries were the result of a nursing home fall.

4.9 Mrs. Hawkins was taken to the Paris Regional Medical Center in Paris, Texas. She was seen there by an orthopaedic doctor who examined and x-rayed her and found fractures of the left arm and foot. The physician provided normal treatment by stabilizing the fractures and trying to make Mrs. Hawkins as comfortable as possible. Nursing home personnel returned Mrs. Hawkins to the nursing home at approximately 9:00 a.m. the morning of October 24, 2012, where she remained confined to her bed and room for the remainder of that day and night. Though Mrs. Hawkins continued to suffer as a result of her traumatic injuries, little attention was given to her by the nurses and aides employed by the Defendants. Rather, the Defendants abandoned Mrs. Hawkins and failed to monitor her condition and allowed her condition to worsen, all as a result of their scheme to concoct a lie as to how her injuries were sustained. The Defendants' staff purported to test her glucose level and recorded the level as much higher than the level required for reporting to her physician. However, no report was made to her physician nor any guidance sought as to any necessary adjustments to Mrs. Hawkins' insulin pump.

4.10 At 6:30 a.m. on October 25, 2012, employees of the Defendants purportedly checked the glucose level of Mrs. Hawkins and recorded it at a level far above the level required for reporting to her physician, and no report was made. Later than morning, Mrs. Hawkins' husband carried her to the orthopaedic physician in Paris, Texas, for further treatment of her fractures. She was returned to Defendants' care at approximately 11:45 a.m. on October 25, 2012. Again, little attention was given to Mrs. Hawkins by the nursing home staff though her suffering was great. An employee of the Defendants purportedly checked Mrs. Hawkins' glucose level at 4:30 p.m. on October 25, 2012, and recorded the level at 468. Subsequent events would lead to the conclusion that her actual glucose level would have far exceeded 468. Nonetheless, a test result of 468 was well above the level which required an immediate report to Mrs. Hawkins' physician and the nurses employed by the Defendants failed to report the reading. Again, there was no attention given to the insulin pump of Mrs. Hawkins.

4.11 On October 25, 2012, at 4:00 p.m., it was noted by an employee of Defendants that Mrs. Hawkins “rouses slowly to verbal and tactile stimuli.” No further recorded attention was given to Mrs. Hawkins for approximately an hour and a half. At 5:30 p.m., it was noted that Mrs. Hawkins was totally unresponsive, skin was cool to touch, respiration was labored, and they were unable to get a blood pressure reading. A 911 call was made. Upon arrival at the nursing home, the EMTs started CPR and attempted to intubate Mrs. Hawkins but were unable to do so because of the presence of vomit in her throat. They were able, however, to restore a faint heart beat and removed her to the emergency room at East Texas Medical Center in Clarksville. There, at 6:18 p.m., the glucose level of Mrs. Hawkins was recorded at 1120, ten (10) times the normal level. The medical providers determined that she had suffered cardiac arrest as a result of “diabetic complication.” Though tests at the Clarksville emergency room concluded that Mrs. Hawkins was essentially brain dead, she was transported on life support to Wadley Regional Medical Center in Texarkana, Texas. At Wadley on October 27, 2012, the Plaintiffs received the final medical opinion that there was no hope for their loved one, and the sad, anguished decision was made to disconnect Mrs. Hawkins from life support. On October 27, 2012, approximately 72 hours after the fall, Mrs. Hawkins was pronounced dead.

4.12 The total lack of care of Mrs. Hawkins by the Defendants’ employees, as stated above, was the direct and proximate result of the Defendants’ failure to have in place policies and procedures for the proper care of Mrs. Hawkins and the Defendants’ failure to provide training and supervision of their employees for the proper care of Mrs. Hawkins.
